

Re: Reference for Michael Bang

As the Product Owner of an internal digital platform for researchers in Novo Nordisk, I worked with Michael for a year when he was employed as a freelance consultant in the Digital Accelerator R&ED. It was both a pleasure and a privilege to work with Michael on the project to deliver an innovative and dynamic product. Here, his tasks included re-designing and implementing a new framework for our existing data pipelines, general work in architectural design and implementation of our existing backends, as well as presentations on different technical topics for the team. Michael is a great team player, always friendly, willing to help and supporting his teammates. He brought strong technical ability, quickly integrating into the team and delivering value to the project. With his fresh perspective, he offered new ideas to further strengthen and enhance the platform. I'd have no hesitation in working with Michael again in future.
